Champs."

A new rule permitting the wearing of Pep Club uniforms on Friday sparked new enthusiasm in the Pep Club this year. The Pep Club members supported the team at all the games and topped the year off with the Pep Club dance. The cheerleaders added a great deal of spirit by winning the coveted title of "Grand Champs" at clinic.

Left, Ann and Tim Monachino guide Jeff Sullivan, '66 Homecoming queen, and escort Joe Latona in royalty procession. Below, Nancy Lober and Edie Moretina are perched atop a car in the royalty parade.

From a 19-0 deficit at the half, the big gold squeezed out a fantastic 20-19 victory over St. Mary's with 39 seconds left in the game. Victory also reigned when Queen Annie Angle was crowned at the half.

Frantic decorators picked up the ball and raced to create "Twilight Fantasy," the theme initiated by the team Friday and passed to the dance Saturday night.

Little in size but big in spirit, the faculty are first to scream in the competition yell.

Pep rallies took on new faces at Pius this year. The days of athletic activities found the Pep Club going outdoors for a rally, coming at night for a bonfire, or seeing the latest thing in imaginative characters. The result was a guaranteed surprise every time and a boost in Warrior spirit.

Lettermen provide new look for gym

Equipped with paint brushes and rollers, and garbed in coveralls, the Pius Lettermen descended upon the gym, Dec. 20, 6 p.m. Their goal was a freshly painted gym and their plan was to paint until they had it. The painting continued until approximately 2:00 a.m., December 21, when the weary-eyed, "white-haired" boys settled down to an all-night poker game and pizza party.

Boosters raise funds to carpet library

The Booster's Club has been hard at work this year, both in behind the scenes preparations and in projects much in evidence in the school. Preparations began early in the fall for the second annual Booster's Club musical "I Kidd You Not," presented at Oak Park on March 8,9, and 10, by a cast of nearly 200 boosters, students and friends.

Upon returning from Christmas vacation, students were surprised to see wall-to-wall carpeting in the library, courtesy of the Booster's Club. Early in December, the club presented a much needed projector to the school.

Members treated themselves to a night out at the Shrimp and Beverage Party on December 16. Three hundred people attended the party, which was planned, cooked, and served by members of the club.

Service sets Stu Co mood

Certainly any officer of an organization by the fact that he holds an office is asked to give of his time for the benefit of those who elected him. The tables were turned in October when Peter Koppe, Student Council president, asked the student body to help make the holidays happy for Pius grads overseas. The idea had originated in one of the planning sessions of the Student Council when Sr. Rose Celine, StuCo sponsor, mentioned that one of the sisters thought it would be nice to remember our soldiers at Christmas time.

This first project set the tone of the Student Council this year. The council was trying to get away from the old custom of the Student Council sponsoring one dance after another.

The next item on the agenda was the arrival of the schools newest bulletin board, put on the west wall of the cafeteria.

Decals decoy for trip

The National Honor Society, under the leadership of Mary Ann Barr, took on two projects this year to aid St. Pius X students. The first was the installation of five machines in the library and the hallways that dispensed paper, pens and other necessities of school life. The machines were Godsend to those forgetful students who are always saying, "Say, can you lend me some paper?"

The second project was the buying of 1,000 pages of Saint Pius X Warrior decals. The decals were blue, gold, and white in color. They bore the insignia of Pope Pius X and also the name of Warriors.

In early March, the NHS went to Saint Louis, Missouri, to the state convention which was held at Beaumont High School. At the convention Honor Society members had their choice of seminars to go to ranging from Civil Rights to the Space Age.

To end the year right, the NHS sponsored a bake sale to finance the trip to Saint Louis this year and to make it possible for the Society to go next year.

Left: Mary Ann Barr, NHS president, may be pondering the complexity of the holes in the suspended ceiling and their patterns relating to Copernicus' Third Law of Equadistance but the chances are that she is day-dreaming just before her next meeting. Bolivian mission attracts Spanish students

The goal toward which the Spanish Club worked this year was making the student body more aware of the activities of our sister school in Bolivia. The club, under the guidance of their sponsor, Mrs. Connie Steinke put their Spanish to use when they exchanged letters with students and teachers in Bolivia.

Some of the members of the Spanish Club are Beth Vescovo, John Palermo, Melissa Berg, President Sue Schroeder, Peter Koppe, Dee Curtin and Mary Ann Reed. Left, Beth Vescovo reads over important information the club has collected about the Bolivian mission.

Lettermen's marathon beautifies gym

With dirty overalls, messy paint brushes, good humor and a never ending night the Lettermen pursued their task of painting the gym. The real work was finished at one-thirty a.m. but then came the toughest part which was the all night poker game and pizza party.

Angels in robes appear on screen

"And suddenly there was with Barb Cooper, a great multitude of the Pius host, praising God and singing 'Oh, Holy Night'".

Although this scene was not the first Christmas, this glorious event occurred Tuesday, December 20, 1967, on KCMO TV, Ch. 5.

That was the day that the Jubileers of Saint Pius performed for the 'City of Fountains.'

Left, the Jubileers prepare at the television studio. Below: Seniors Dennis Dunlop and Bob Nelson, along with Sister David Marie and the other Jubileers, intensely observe their own TV performance.

One hundred-fifty packages stood waiting in the Post Office, waiting to begin a journey that would take them half-way around the earth, for these packages were an effort on the part of students of Pius to bring Christmas, U.S.A. to South Viet Nam.

Ignited by a plea from Student Council president Peter Koppe, there began an influx of articles ranging from homemade cookies to mint-flavored toothpaste. After all, what is Christmas without mint-flavored toothpaste?

Weeks later, the students received letters from several soldiers thanking them for their thoughtfulness.

The 4-day task of packing 150 boxes fell, naturally, to the OPWA, i.e., Official Present Wrappers Association. Above left, seniors Ann Bartlet and Rosalie McKenzie try to decide whether to pack Lipton's soup or Uncle Ben's Rice. A trip to the Star launched third quarter activities for the Journalism staff. Biology students experienced the joys and woes of expectant parents as they awaited the arrival of their adopted chickens.

The junior-sponsored Talent Show awakened students' hidden abilities. Freshmen "hooped and hollared" at their fun night. All in all, second semester proved worthy of numerous reproaches—I Kidd You Not.

The chorus blasted the "Hallelujah" to greet the Christmas season. The students resounded the hallelujah at the end of the program which officially ended the first semester. Sister David Marie led the chorus in a television yuletide performance, and the band chimed in with "Winter Wonderland", "Sleigh Ride", "Adeste Fidelis", and "Christmas Round the World." Seniors trimmed the Jesse tree with symbols of the departments in the school. Greg Stine, Senior Class president, presented the faculty and staff gifts ranging from a Genius-At-Work lamp for Mr. George Noll to a rug for the sisters. Monsignor T. J. O'Brien reciprocated with three gifts: a candy cane for all, an added day of vacation, and a howling version of Herman's Hermits.

Christmas carollers not left in cold

This year the Jubileers found themselves jubilating in the midst of Christmas lights and window shoppers on the Plaza. Their carolling took them to Swanson's and Hall's where they were invited to perform indoors, and to visit a fellow Jubileer John Heshion.

With the help of candles, posters, foggy smoke and hidden music, Miss Judy Bromberg turned her normal basement into an eighteenth century coffeehouse. It happened on a dark winter night as the Bromberg residence was invaded by the English III A class. The highlights of the evening included a nonsense conversation and a cutting from SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER given by members of the English class. The new experience was topped off with Miss Bromberg's serving of hot chocolate and English delicacies.

Ribbons adorn locker faces blushed with red.

Bells, ribbons, and rolls of scotch tape made their way to school in big brown bags. The carriers of these bags were not Santa Clauses, but decorators with the tools of their trade. Christmas brought to St. Pius new artistic dimensions which spanned the lockers and hallways. This Christmas wonderland enlivened the last days before vacation.

The "Get Acquainted" dance started things off with a lively bounce this year. Held early in the year, it gave freshmen a chance to meet upper classmen and fellow freshmen. In October ghosts and jack-o-lanterns haunted the gym for the Halloween dance. Other dances ranged from the semi-formal Homecoming dance to the highly informal midsemester dance.

Pius Warriors trade war dance for boogaloo.

Students sign in as summer signs off

With the enrollment of 550 students, registration day at Pius presented a chaotic scene. True, vacation was over, but if the students felt any remorse in relinquishing their freedom, they showed little sign of it. Rather, the entire atmosphere was one of "it's nice to be back." Then, with the experiment of modular scheduling behind, Pius looked forward to a promising school year.

Seniors Tina Enderle and Melissa Berg find humor during the chaos which has baffled freshmen Vickie Gulotta and Maureen Park.

Proverb fits: All roads lead to library

The idea of having one centrally located learning area has brought many new changes to the Pius program. The library, for instance, is now located where it is accessible from all parts of the school. Surrounding the library are the English, science, and history resource centers, making the entire lower level of the Arts and Science Building a silent floor. This centralization program has eliminated the need for study carrel passes.

This new project began last summer when some of the students first volunteered to help, and, eventually, after a season of work, all the centers had been relocated and were ready to open.

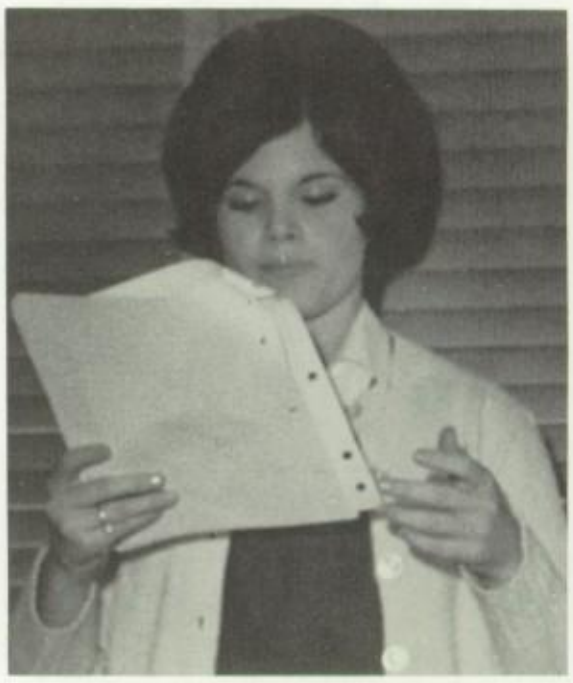
Independent study, new course for education

Independent study, a new learning technique, innovated St. Pius X education this year. Under a faculty member sponsor, all juniors, seniors, and some sophomores were offered the opportunity to pursue an aspect of a subject they would be particularly interested in.

The program presented unlimited possibilities ranging from a philosophical study to a course and kit for survival in case of thermo-nuclear attack!



Right, Karen Huke, sophomore, delivers the first lecture of her independent research in drama and costume design. She also made a costume as a part of her program.

Argentina, Peru add Spanish spice

Goodbye to tortillas, anchilladas, sarapes, and flamenco dancing. Hello to hamburgers, apple pie, miniskirts, and the bugaloo. This was what faced Sylvia Bartoli and Luis Polanco, the Latin American students who came to Pius this year.

Sylvia, a senior, arrived in the United States in August from Rosario, Argentina. She left Argentina at midsemester, to come here to attend another full year of school, then return home in July and finish the year there!

Luis Polanco, also a senior, came to St. Pius, from Arequipa, Peru. His first "big" accomplishment was making friends with John Palermo, a senior and fourth year Spanish student. Luis is now in a typical senior dilemma, trying to decide which college to attend: Rockhurst or UMKC.

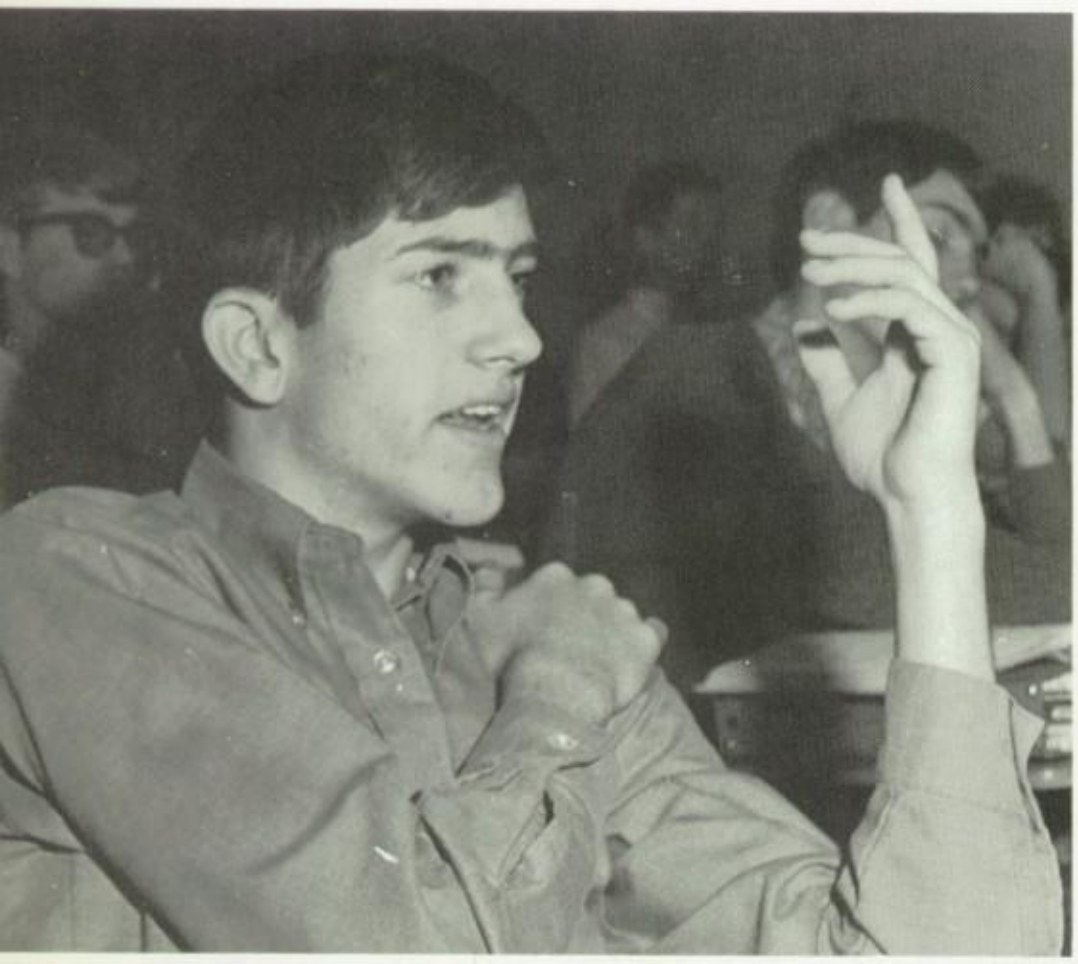
Science returns to earth



General Science, a new course initiated for underclassmen planning to go on in science, was headed by Mrs. Sandra Stimetz. Sister Marie Francis started housekeeping in the biology lab where Sister Florence left off. A study of radiation was possible with Sister Mary Hilaria's supervision. Chemistry A students switched to a new textbook. Earth Science (alias Physical Science) was taught with a practical outlook concerning everyday science, such as meteorology.

Team teaching predominated in the Math Department, with the exception of Mr. George Noll's Math IV class. Independent study groups were initiated in Algebra II, and later were tried in Algebra I.

Left, sophomores Joe Kielbey, Linda Porter, Steve Patton, and Midge Cutolo work on an experiment in General Science. in renovated course

Revolution happened this year as three new history teachers replaced three whose services ended last spring. Mr. James Tompkins commanded the new force. Freshmen dug up the past through a series of panels, beginning with "The Major Religions of the Ancient World." Juniors, using a new text, gauged the importance of British blunders against colonial rebellious attitudes, while some seniors shot holes through the surtax proposal.

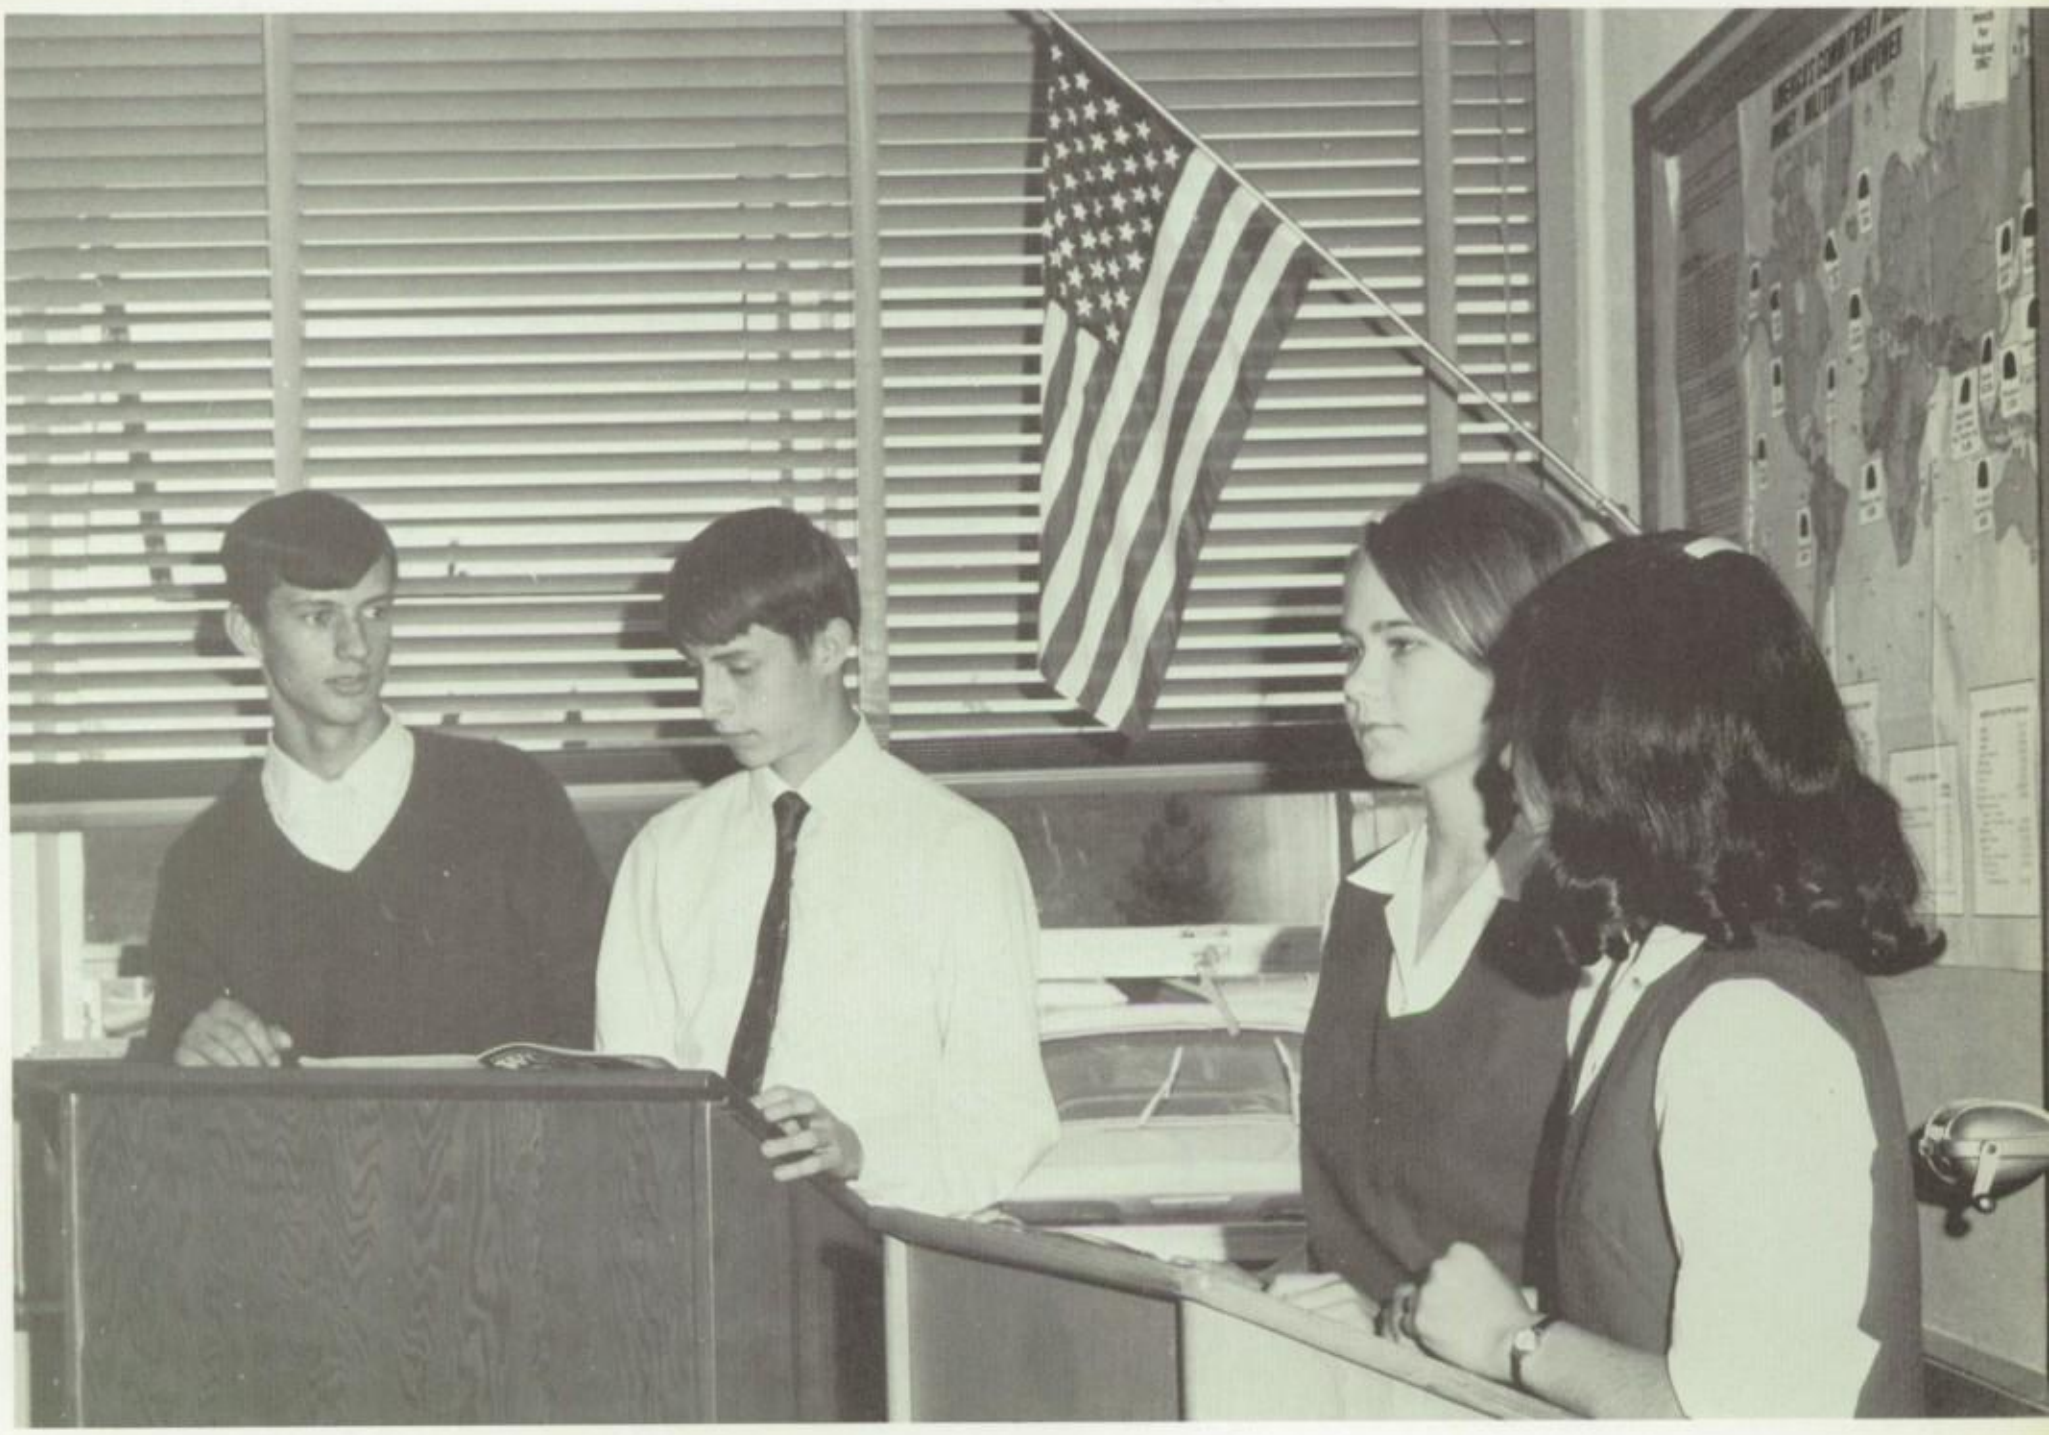
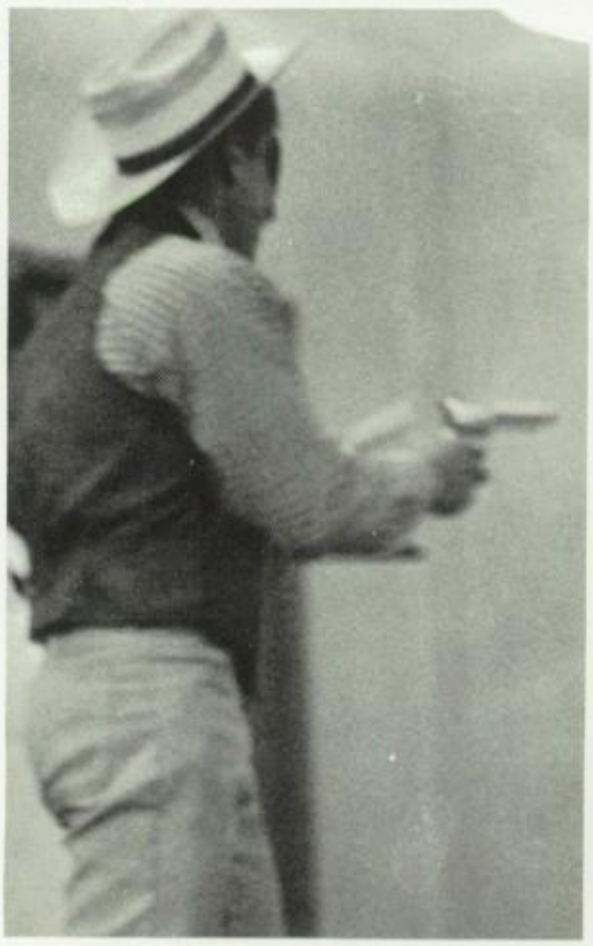
Revolution routs teachers, techniques



Skits present happenings in literature

Skits scattered throughout the English curriculum reinterpreted, sometimes fantastically, the year's work. A Psychedelic Spelling Bee was held by the freshmen. Students dressed wildly, adding to the theme. Sophomores went to UMKC and saw JULIUS CAESAR a play adapted to fit the Cuban situation. After studying sketches from Thoreau, juniors took to the woods to look at nature. An adventure in science fiction was taken by the seniors when they viewed FAIL SAFE. In connection with the History Department, the entire school took a field trip to see "Gone With The Wind."



Top, Mrs. Marie Ryczek reorganizes her Freshman B English group so that class may begin discussion. Above, sophomores Dennis Rooney, George Koppe, Pat Murphy and John Bower begin their first skit in American lit. Later, this group achieved notoriety through the label, "The Mighty Sophomore Art Players."Above right, Bob Papreck, senior, becomes a hippy in a senior skit on "maturity,"one of the subjects in the Great Themes course. When juniors study the hero concept in literature, Preston Dunham becomes a cowboy.

It may look as though Pius has developed its own hippie colony, but it is really freshmen English students, Helen Haggard, Ellen Haggard, Mary O'Halloran, and Mary Harrison as they present "Uncle Remus" to their class.

Practical arts move to new quarters

During the summer the practical arts department pulled out its plugs to make room for the resource centers and moved to rooms 101, 113, and 114. The drafting room was moved to the third floor. Curtains were hung in one of the rooms, giving a more office-like atmosphere. A new practice in the department was to offer typing services to the teachers.

The department, headed by Sister Mary Jovita, welcomed two new teachers this year: Mrs. Virginia Eckart teaches shorthand, typing, and record keeping classes, and Sister Rita Francis instructs the drafting classes.

Far above, Mrs. Connie Steinke and her French I class sing "Allouette." A priest visits Pius to check on the progress of our Mexican exchange student, Maria Helena.

French enters curriculum as German bows out

As French was introduced to some forty students, German entered its last year at Pius. Latin students again studied the exploits of Julius Caesar and Hercules. Fourth year Spanish was taught for the first time.

Spanish students had the advantage of direct contact with their language. Sister Carmen, MMB, a native of Spain, taught a number of the Spanish classes. Also around school were foreign students from Argentina, Peru, and Mexico who aided in the Spanish students' studies.

Ink and pencil draw attention

Ink and pencil drawings commanded the interest of art students this year. Other facets of art such as water paints, and chalk exemplified students' artistic ability also. Oil painting, usually restricted to third year students, was extended to second year also. At Christmas, giant banners hung in St. Patrick's Church were designed and constructed by art students.

Below, during exercises, Theresa Matthews plays a game of hide-and-seek with her hair. Right, Mary Pat Kemper awaits her turn to tumble.

Mrs. Jane Mills' classes went mod with scooter boards this year. Using the boards mainly for relays, the girls displayed their ingenuity in making their own games and rules.

The freshman boys won a double credit in gym: Besides the usual one half credit, they placed first in Catholic League football.

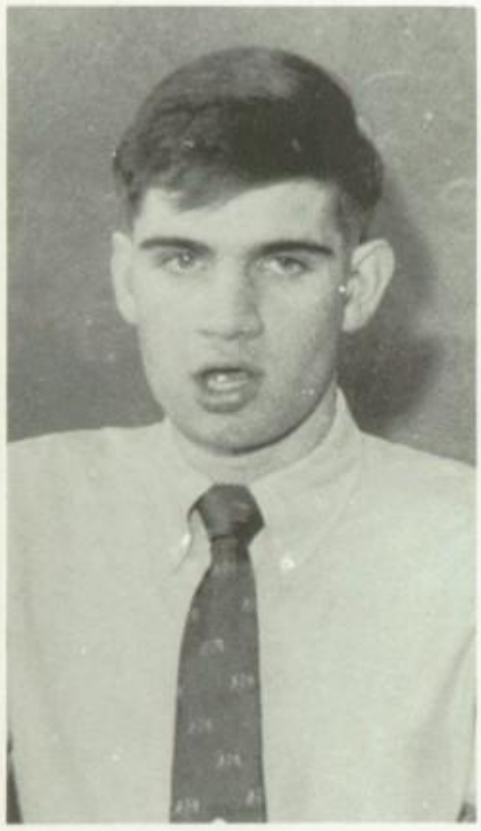
Fine arts activities throb to a new beat



When Tijuana sounds were heard from the band last fall, all knew the Fine Arts department had swung into a "mod" beat. Chorus picked it up in the theme song from Expo '67. And the beat went on to speech and drama, where some students performed independent studies. Debaters, an eager twenty-one of them, joined forces on their own time to find new interest in the topics. Pius played a new note this year, hosting a speech meet for the diocese in February.

Left, senior Pat Hall is student and teacher as he takes over a class of beginning debaters. Below, Terry Komer emphasizes a point to Darrell Messbarger in drama class. Far below, band members are caught in one of their quiet moments. Right, Tim Arnold, Jerry Harbison, and Dan Riha chime in on new Christmas songs.

Pius students at Byzantine Mass

A unique experience for St. Pius students came in the form of an Eastern rite Byzantine Mass celebrated by Msgr. Bruening. The traditional senior girls retreat was held at Immaculta Retreat House with Father Carl Kreuger as retreat master. Under and upperclass retreats were held during Lent. There were five priests to help students make a profitable retreat.

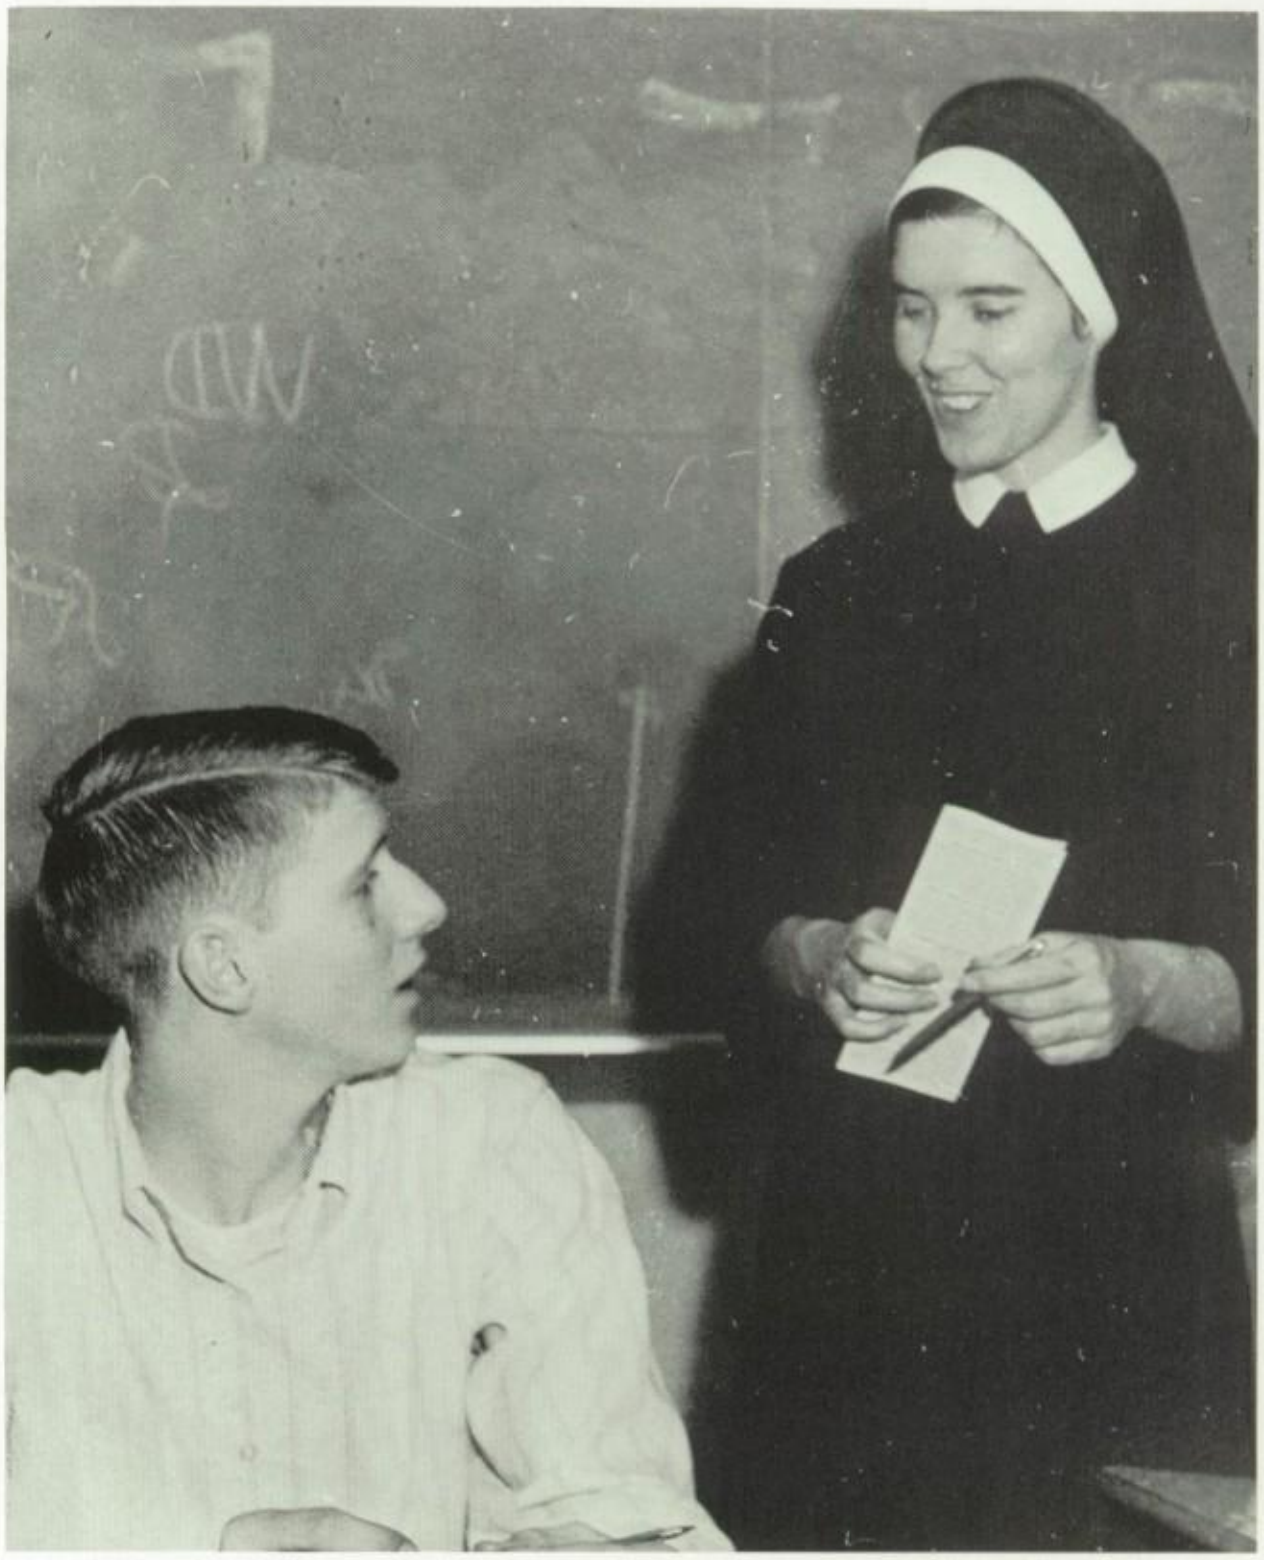
New ideas are born, concepts are formed

Sophs anonymously tell how many times they have gone to confession in February to claim themselves the best class. In support of this point a Mass and Bible Vigil were planned by them.

The movie RAISIN IN THE SUN was shown and many students got a new outlook on the current racial problem.

Juniors and seniors became "foggy headed" when they were in Sister Noel's "Christian Values" class. The subjects of discussion were very philosophical and mind-provoking.



Above, Sister Noel and Dave Gosoroski discuss the value to teen-agers of the pamphlet "Tips to Teen-agers."

The St. Pius X football squad opened up its '67 season with a satisfying victory over the Northeast Vikings with a score of 25 to 6. From then on the Warriors averaged one injury per contest while going into a four game slump. They lost to Lee Summit, Parkhill, and Lillis, and later in the season they fell victim to St. Joe and Pembroke Country Day.

Homecoming, the Warriors met the St. Mary's Trojans. The Trojans led with a score of 19-0 going into the third quarter, but a spirited offense pushed over three touchdowns while the defense held. The extra point of the third touchdown put the Warriors ahead to stay with the score now 20-19 and just seconds remaining. Later in the season the Warriors shut out the Hogan Rams to round out a 3-6 record for the season.

Warrior ball carrier, Tim Arnold, number 22, ploughs head on into St. Joe opposition while trying to reach the goal line that seemed to stretch farther from reach as the opposition increased. Touchdown was finally achieved.

B-Team starts well, finishes third.

The Saint Pius X Junior Varsity started the season with a decisive victory and ended the season with a scoreless tie. Between those two instances were five heartbreaking defeats and two great victories.

At first glance the Junior Varsity's record seems to be a copy of the Varsity record for the year, losing to the same teams the Varsity lost to and winning the games the Varsity had won, the B-Team achieved individuality by tying Pem-Day for third place in the league.

The B-Team was coached ably by Mr. James Tompkins and quarterbacked by Phil Brady and Ron Turner.

Left, the frosh defense sets itself for the next play against Hogan which resulted in an intercepted pass and a touchdown for Saint Pius. Above, the freshmen team finished the season 5-0-1 and were the champions of the Catholic-Prep League. Last row: Hallows, Malone, Pearson, Gabel, Jordan, and Reichert. Third row: Moler, Diebold, Honeycutt, Waldman, Teson, Turner, Rosenbaum, Barrow, Bertrand. Second row: O'Toole, Ambriz, Drackert, Mendenhall, Cuda, Vogliardo, Wieman, Ferguson, Bukaty. First row: Griggs, Strobbe, Sullivan, Thompson, Birmingham, Ryan, Schumacher, Gardener.

Undefeated frosh set record

Under the leadership of Coach Gary DeLouis, the freshmen football team finished their 1967 football season with a record of 5-0-1.

Quarterbacked by Gary Griggs and spurred on by fine performances by Sid Jordan and every other member of the squad, the frosh looked every bit the champions they were. The only blemish on their record was a hard fought 13-13 tie with Lillis.

By finishing undefeated in the Catholic-Prep League, the frosh became the champs of that league. The deciding game for the title was their last game. Their opponents for the game were Saint Joseph of Shawnee who were also coming into that game undefeated. The winner of the clash would be the first place finisher. Pius was up for the game and took an early lead. The freshmen gridders kept that lead and went home a 7-0 winner.

As a result of that game the '71 Warriors became the first Saint Pius X football team to post an undefeated record in the history of the school. The freshmen record and their Catholic-Prep League Championship are excellent testimony to the kind of football the frosh had to play.

Quarterback Gary Griggs calls the signal on the 40 yard line against Hogan. On this play Griggs handed off to Sid Jordan who blasted off for a distance of 60 yards and a Warrior touchdown.

season pace

Despite a faulty record, Cross Country 1967 was able to boast of a team time that was the best ever recorded since the sport was started in 1965. This year the Warrior hopes for a better season were marred when Jim Arnone, one of the top two or three runners, missed three meets because of an injury.

The fleet-footed tribe from Warriorland chose as their Most Valuable Runner, senior Jim Pickernell, and High Point Man fell into the path of junior Bill Duensing. The '67 squad also set a first when senior Sam Schembri became the first three-year-letterman in the sport.

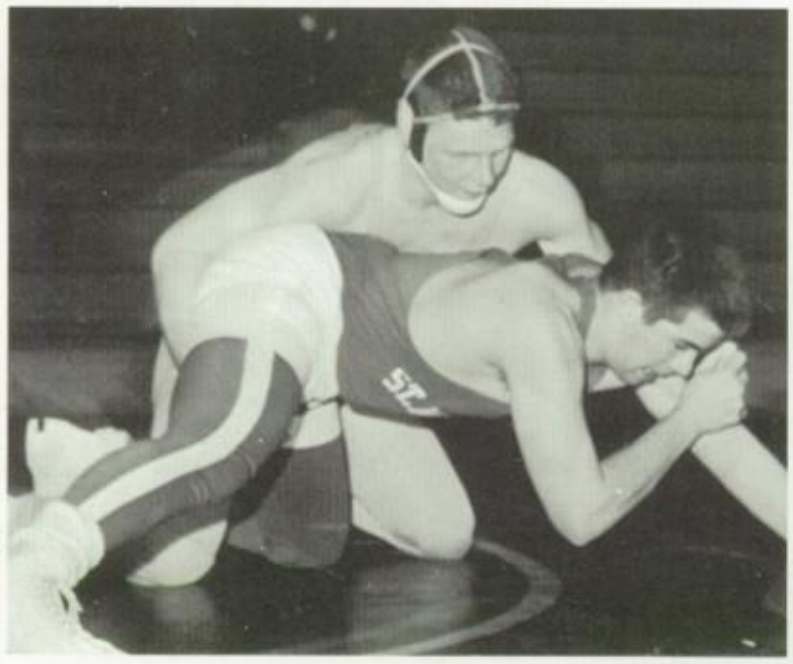
Below, Bob Turner, the eldest of the three Turner brothers on the wrestling squads, is about to turn his opponent over and pin him. Below right, Mike Mesa obtains a reversal over his opponent in the Bonner Springs tourney.

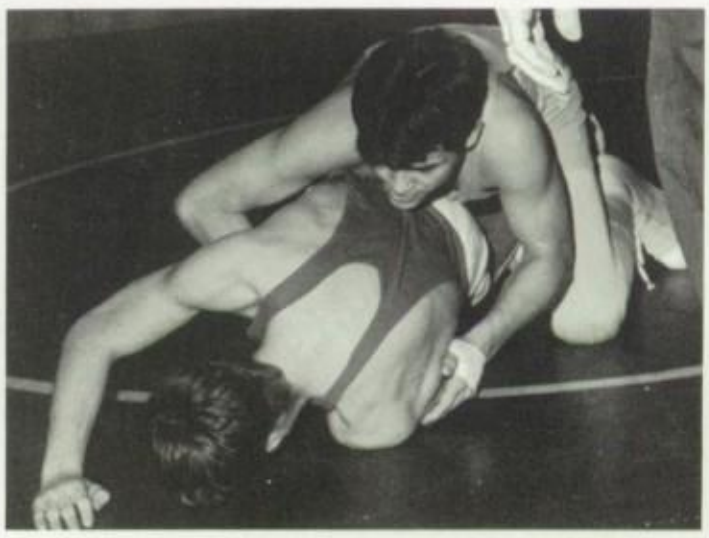
This years' wrestling team under the direction of coach Gerald DeLouis completed a successful year as two St. Pius men went en route to the state championships. These were held in Kansas City for the first time in 10 years.

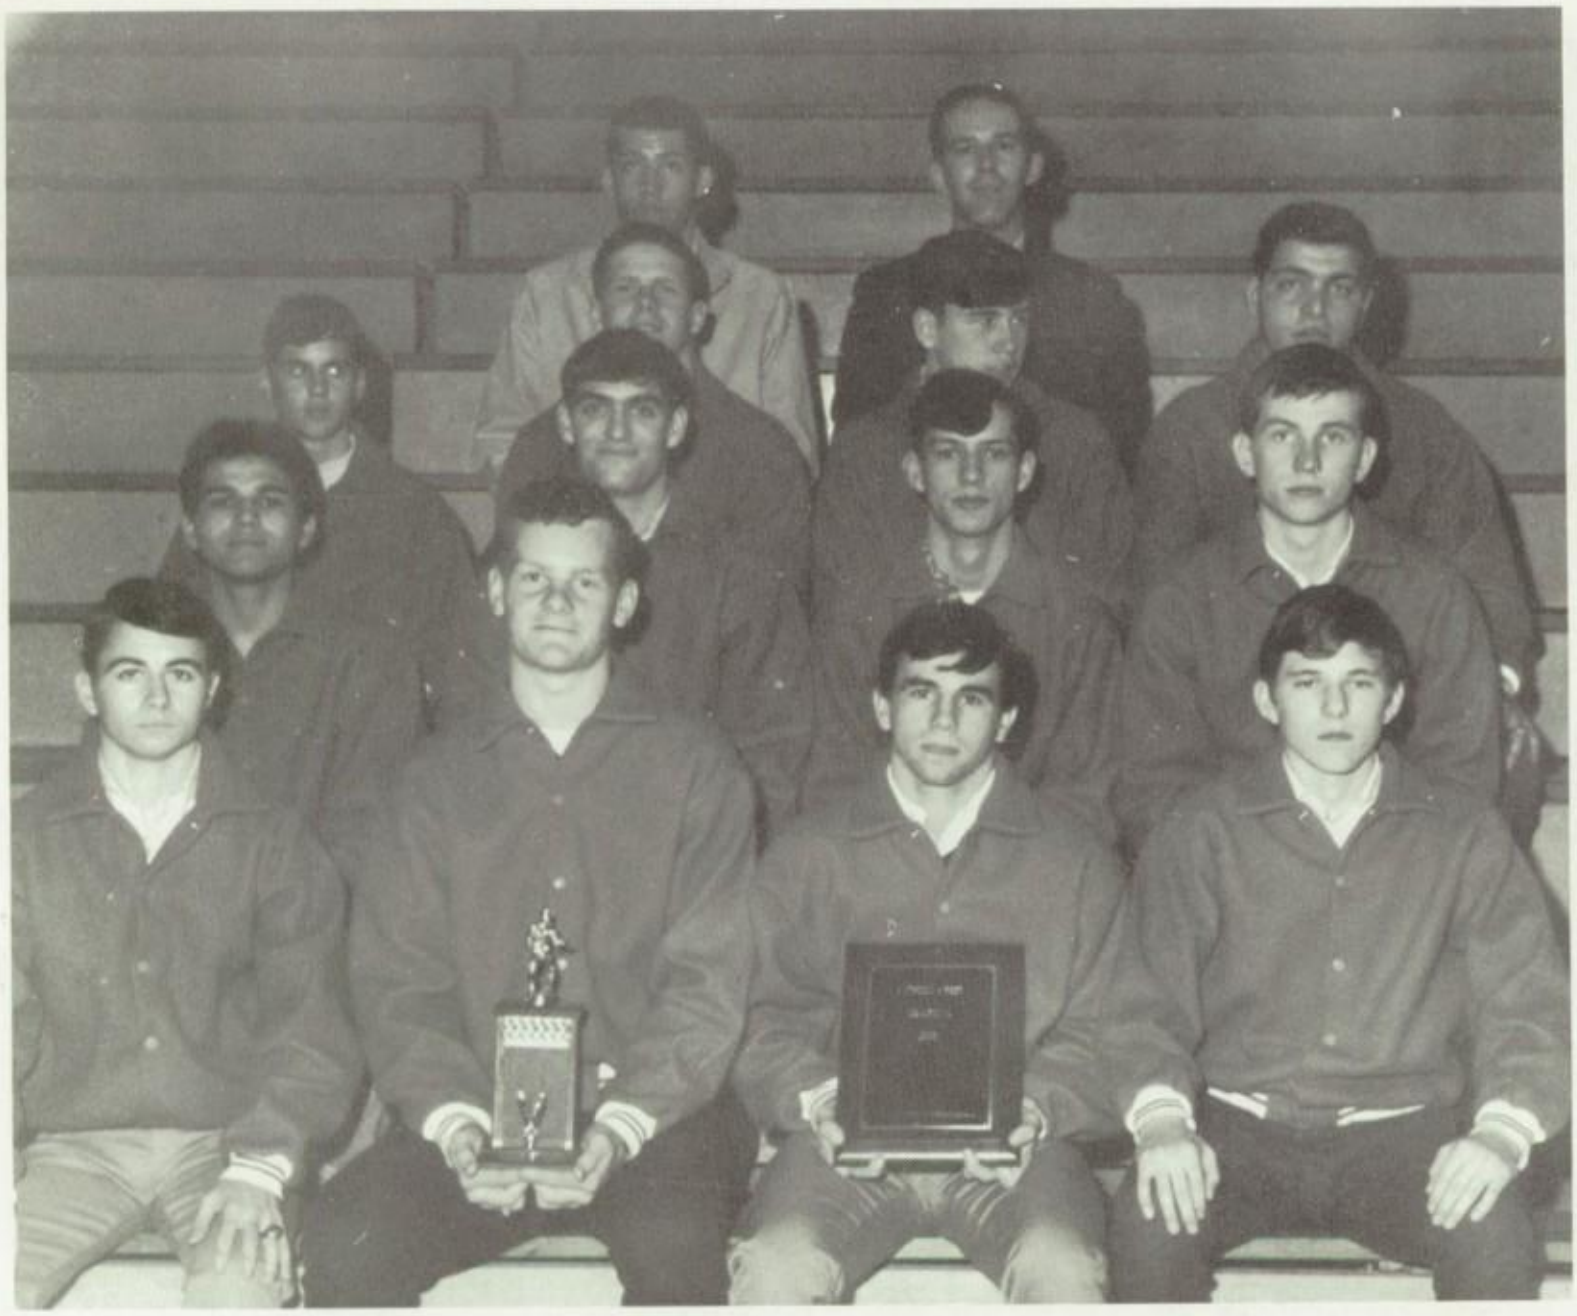
The Varsity squad captured their second straight Catholic League championship in grand style with seven Warriors taking first place. The nearest competition was from Pembrooke-Country Day School, which had three boys finish first. The lowest any Pius grappler finished was fourth.

Led by Chub Strobbe and Mike Mesa the wrestlers took sixth place in the district meet. Then Bob Turner, Chub Strobbe, and Mike Mesa advanced to the regional contest. At the regionals, Turner lost in the semi-finals and had to settle for an eventual fourth place. Strobbe and Mesa however perservered to take second places and advance to state.

Coach DeLouis tabbed the team at the beginning of the year as a hard-working bunch of boys and the grapplers did not prove him wrong. With five out of the twelve places filled on the team by freshman or sophomores the team took home more than their share of trophies including third place in the Bonner Springs tourney.







Above, The Saint Pius X Varsity Wrestlers are winners of third place in the Bonner Springs tourney (trophy with Pat Roe) and Catholic League Championship (trophy held by Chub Strobbe). Cagers play hard, but can't win 'em all

The St. Pius X basketball squad finished their season with a mediocre 10-15 record. Their league record ended up 4-6, which captured fourth place behind Hogan, St. Joseph, and Lillis.

It was thought that the Warriors, this year, had promising material, and many a prediction saw them in the race for the league crown. In the pre-season Catholic League Tournament, the Warriors took third place by defeating Lillis High School by eight points. The Pius B-Ballers fell only to the top-seeded team, Hogan, in a low scoring game.

Possibly an explanation as to why the Warriors record was only 10-15 is the stiff competition which they played. Central, Truman, and Miege were all rated in the top ten in the city and the Warriors recorded three of their losses to these teams. In addition, the old problem of height again plagued the Warrior Five.

This was Coach Joe Monachino's first year as head coach of basketball at St. Pius, although he coached football for two years.

The Warrior B-team, coached by Mr. Joe Witherow, faired better than the Varsity. They established a 15-7 mark which gained them second place in the Catholic League.

The Freshman Warriors, who are considered one of the most promising in the history of St. Pius, won the Catholic League title, going undefeated in league play.

Freshmen boost paper drive, tin can drive

"The freshmen challenge the sophomores to war" read signs throughout Pius halls—a war for tops in the paper drive sponsored by the Student Council in October. Partly because of freshmen effort, three trucks were filled with papers.

The week of November 13 was the first week for the Freshmen to bring in tin cans. The class brought in over 4,000 tin cans with Gary Griggs bringing in 713 and Paul Pearson bringing in 400.

Freshmen officers, elected in mid November, also planned a fun night.

"Life is merely changed, not taken away"

We remember
John Kerry Flanagan, sophomore,
Class of 1970,
who the week of Homecoming brought upon us
the shock of sudden death while giving us an appreciation for life and a concern for others.

The Sophomore Class officers are: John Woolridge, president; John Bower, treasurer; Joyce Scantlin, vice-president; and Barbara Presko, secretary.

The sophomores started 1967 as sweet as you please. Instead of the whole school, the Class of '70 undertook the sale of chocolate with great success. Each student was required to sell a quota of two cases, and as an added bonus, ten prizes were awarded to eager quota-sellers. The profits were used to initiate the Kerry Flanagan Memorial Fund in honor of Kerry, a classmate who died in October.

A fun-night in December capped the sophomore's spirit, with relays and refreshments providing for a pleasure -filled evening. Again, early in the second semester, the sophomores broadcast their selling ability. A contest for the best insignia preluded the sale of sweatshirts. Advance orders were taken to avoid over or undershipments and a waste of money.

When the Junior-Senior Prom rolled around, the sophs sponsored the traditional car wash for the upper classmen. Truly all 122 sophomores worked hard to make this year one of their most-remembered years at Pius.

Hard work, fun, and enthusiastic classmates proved to be a successful recipe for the '67-'68 year.

A bake sale kicked-off the agenda with all proceeds going into the treasury to fund the Junior-Senior Prom.

Before this, Elaine Lale, junior, was crowned Queen of Northtown this summer.

When September rolled around, many plans were made for the first semester. A Thanksgiving dance provided fun and music for all classes at Pius. Following this, a skating party and a talent show turned out fine results. Fifteen junior boys helped start the varsity football season.

The juniors worked hard to make the '68 Junior-Senior Prom a real success. Again, the recipe was put to work, and this time, even more tastefully.

Auction, faculty game reap Class funds

"Sold!" rang out through the school gym Saturday, April 28, when the school sponsored an auction. This was the first time an auction had been tried as a school money-raising project. The Senior Class acted as a steering committee with Bill Metz and Larry Rutkowski acting as co-chairmen. Much of the proceeds went to the Senior Class for the class gift. Such items as antique furniture and old china could be bought at the auction.

A senior-sponsored basketball game between the St. Pius faculty and the North Kansas City High School faculty, Saturday, March 30, also reaped those needed funds for the class gift. The game began at 8:00 p.m. Senior girls prepared refreshments and sold them at the concession stand during intermission.

Seniors also sold football T-shirts having the class year indicated.

THE CLOSING

Dear Ann Don't let your success spoil you
Mary Elizabeth Gould

Ann,
Your a brain! Your also a sweet person to have around. Have fun during the summer and
I will see you next year.
Good luck!
Marta Yañez

Ann

Although we haven't always agreed~~ed~~ (excuse the spelling but you know what a rotten speller I am.) Anyway, although we haven't always agreed on things. I still think we are friends, I also still think I am right. But we shall let by gones be by gones (shall'nt we). And now I will compose a poem for you.

Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
If I were like you,
I'd be artistic too.

Second verse

Roses are red
Violets are blue
I am a lousy poet
So I through, through through.

Your Friend

Mary Susan
